

September 18, 1937.

Dear Ed-

We arrived here by plane Tuesday afternoon, and had a fine trip. We had previously planned and written of coming Wednesday, so we were scarcely met by a familiar face. The next day was a discouraging one, looking for housing, and finding so little as a room for that night only at the last minute. This morning, however, we were cheered by news of a vacancy at the University Truax project, at Truax Field at the eastern end of town. These will be at least living quarters, although only temporary ones, we hope! The situation is probably worse, if anything, than at Yale at the moment, but some new housing is being built, and there is hope. Dave will be interested to learn that as a staff appointee we were given preferential treatment by the Housing Bureau, amounting to priorities on new accommodations. This may be somewhat undemocratic, but we could not hesitate to take advantage of it.

We want to thank June and yourself for your hospitality the eve of our departure. Please give our best to everyone at the lab.

Yours sincerely,

Joshua